

SEEDWAY WELCOMES ELIZABETH GARNER TO EASTERN NORTH CAROLINA SALES TEAM

HALL, NY - August 24, 2026

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE - HALL NY

HALL, NY – SEEDWAY, LLC is pleased to announce the addition of Elizabeth Garner to its sales team, where she will support growers and dealer partners throughout Eastern North Carolina.

Garner brings a strong combination of agronomic education, hands-on research experience, and practical knowledge of row crop production to SEEDWAY. She holds a bachelor's degree in Crop and Soil Science from North Carolina State University and is currently completing a master's degree in Crop Science with an emphasis in peanut agronomy.

Prior to joining SEEDWAY, Garner spent two years working with NC State's Peanut Agronomy Extension program. She previously served as an undergraduate research assistant with NC State's Soil Fertility Extension Lab, where her work focused primarily on corn and soybean fertility.

In her role with SEEDWAY, Garner will focus on strengthening the company's presence throughout Eastern North Carolina while developing relationships with growers and dealer partners. Her responsibilities will include supporting sales growth, developing and maintaining customer relationships, and assisting with marketing initiatives.

“I am excited to join the SEEDWAY team and help expand the company's presence throughout Eastern North Carolina,” said Garner. “My passion for helping farmers succeed directly aligns with SEEDWAY's commitment to outstanding service and grower-focused solutions. I look forward to building strong relationships with our grower and dealer partners and supporting their continued success.”

Garner currently resides in Clarkton, North Carolina. Outside of work, she enjoys traveling, cooking, walking, and spending time with her horse, Chip.
